DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-3, 21, and 22 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tabata et al. (JP 10-23608) in view of Taniguchi et al. (JP 9-3714).

Tabata et al. disclose a control apparatus comprising a controller 50 detecting the drive power requested for the vehicle drive wheel and adjusting the drive power by setting the engine output increase, a motor output increase in a ratio increasing direction in order of descending priorities of the engine output increase, the motor output increase. However, Tabata et al. do not disclose a gear speed change and the gear ratio increase as the lowest priority after the engine output and the motor output increase.

Taniguchi et al. disclose drive power adjusting by shifting the gear, a feature well known in the prior art.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to design the control system as taught by Tabata et al. and to carry the gearshift in the last order of priority as taught by Taniguchi et al. for the purpose of controlling the hybrid car.

3. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tabata et al. (JP 10-23608) in view of Taniguchi et al. (JP 9-3714) as applied to claim 1 above and further in view of Boll (JP 6-48222) and Minesawa et al. (JP 11-4506).

The features of controlling the drive of the motor for the purpose of canceling the difference between the actual drive power and the drive power required for the vehicle are disclosed by Boll (JP 6-48222) and Minesawa et al.

Re claims 21 and 22, the combined control system discloses the control apparatus as claimed. Claims 21 and 22 that merely recite connecting and using the disclosed features together are inherent to the disclosed structure.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed on May 12, 2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that the references fail to show certain features of applicant's invention, it is noted that the features upon which applicant relies (i.e., the claimed priorities of the engine, motor and transmission load increase being unchangeable and independent of satisfaction of acceleration conditions) are not recited in the rejected claim(s). Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Although Tabata et al. do not require the engine to reach the full load before activating the motor, they clearly disclose the claimed sequence of loading by meeting the acceleration requirement first by engine load and then, when not sufficient, the remaining torque demand is provided by the motor. The applicant's disclosure, as claimed, requires only the sequential increase of engine and motor power. However, at the same time, it does not require the engine load to be larger or dominant over the motor load as seems to be argued by applicant. As for the gear shifting in accordance with developed vehicle velocity, as explained above, it is well known in the art and the majority of known (hybrid or conventional) land vehicles shift to higher gear after sufficient acceleration is reached.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
